BASIN STREET BLUES /
KID KOALA
DIRECTED BY MONKMUS

The lonely death of a wino and his jazzy funeral procession through an animated New Orleans illustrate Kid Koala's turntabalized take on an old blues standard. Jazz musicians emerge from the fabric of the city to accompany the pallbearers, with hollow-eyed city folk and creatures alike observing the passage. The casket carriers sway along, their feet not touching the ground; animals suddenly inflate and ascend skywards. They are soon followed by the onlookers, who listlessly float aloft towards a vague, heavenly portal to the final wafting strains of a scratched-up trumpet.
